RICHARDS & McCRAKEN

SHERIDAN'S MODE OF FIGHTING.—Every master of battle tactics has a favorite mode of fighting, varied of course by circumstances, and especially by the wary dispositions of the enemy. A study of Sheridan's campaigns will, we think, disclose the peculiarity of his very readily. His success has been most brilliant: the secret of it is very simple. In the first place, as we were told by an enthusiastic private just home from the front, "Phil Sheridan fights to win." Other Generals manœuver, and try to outwit the plans of the enemy, to excel in defensive battle, the offensive of such is always weak. Sheridan's is always on the offensive. We do not now speak of Sheridan's raids, which, although conducted in the most masterly manner, are subordinate in character to other plans, and usually seek to elude the enemy. But no; in his grand tactics, as displayed at Winchester, Cedar Creek and Five Forks, we observe a principle which finds its expression in the following order of attack: he organizes his army into three divisions—two strong parallel columns of attack, thrown with the fiercest impetuosity upon the enemy, and a reserve in rear. When the battle rages in front, so that his foe is fully engaged, his reserve, moving by the flank, usually the right, makes a double file around upon the flank and rear of the earnestly employed enemy, and rolls him up on the centre. Just such was the tactics Dessaix and Kellerman at Marengo. The former moved his six thousand infantry by the main road, upon General Zach's triumphant advance from Alessandria, while the latter, moving by the right, made a double left turn upon Pilatti's Austrian horse, and won the day. Sheridan's invariable success, then, has been due to the great earnestness and valor with which he always imbues his troops, and then to his tactics of two columns and a flanking reserve.—United States Service Magazine.

THE ARMY.—The Herald's Washington special says: We have ascertained from official sources that on the 1st day of last May there was 1,050,000 men enrolled in the army on the pay rolls. Since that time there have been discharged a little over 700,000, leaving in round numbers about 330,000 still in the army and on the pay rolls. Of the number discharged, about 300,000 are now en route for their several rendezvous to be paid off and mustered out. The funds sufficient to meet this demand are in the hands of paymasters, and are being paid out as fast as possible. The others who have been discharged, over 400,000, have been fully paid off and mustered out. The rapidity with which this part of the work is performed, may be inferred from the fact that official figures in the Department at Washington show that there have been paid off and mustered out during the last thirty days, 200,000. The recent order of the War Department will probably muster out about half of Sherman's troops, and Paymaster Wilson starts to-morrow with nearly $5,000,000 to pay them off.

CHAMP FERGUSON.—The trial at Nashville of the bushwhacker Champ Ferguson develops such tales of that fellow's barbarism as the following, from the testimony of a witness named Thrasher:

Ferguson's men seized an old citizen named Tabor, a Union man. Ferguson dismounted and went to meet him. Tabor got down and was brought to us, pleading for his life. Ferguson said: "Oh! yes, you oughtn't to die; you have done nothing to die for," at the same time drawing a pistol from his belt and shooting the old man twice—once through the heart—while begging him to desist. He dropped with his head over a little rising ground. Frank Benedict said to Ferguson: "Shoot him in the head," when Ferguson placed his revolver close to Tabor's head and shot him again. Then he turned to me and said: "I am not in favor of killing you, Thrasher; you have never been bushwhacking or stealing horses. I have killed Wash Tabor, a d—d good Christian, and I don't reckon he minds dying." Just then Tabor's wife and daughter reached the spot, screaming and going on.

WHAT THE SOUTH WILL WANT.—North Carolina, the Newbern Times says, will, during the present year, want at least $200,000 worth of plows and as many more of the various implements necessary for successful farming. To these add $100,000 more for carriages, wagons, etc. Then it will require $50,000 to supply woodenware, such as tubs, buckets, pails, barrels, etc., and $50,000 more to supply candles and soap, while $200,000 will hardly be sufficient to furnish shoes for the population. It thinks the people ought to supply these articles for themselves, and not to be dependent upon other sources; but to do so requires a still greater expenditure for the machinery and manufactories to make them, to say nothing of the skilled labor required. It will take some time yet to make North Carolina independent of the North for its manufacturing supplies. In the meantime our manufactures can study the present wants of that region and be prepared to supply them.

THE "EXPRESS" ANSWERED.—A man lately went to General Thomas, asking him not to execute a noted guerrilla in his custody, giving as a reason that the war was about at an end. "I guess we shall have time to hang this fellow," was the response of the General as he dismissed the subject.

Do you Californians possess a kind of Christianity that would shrink from the hanging of regularly-tried and regularly-convicted murderers? If you have, may you enjoy a monopoly of it. 'Tisn't needed elsewhere.—Louisville Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

FRIDAY MORNING, SEPT. 22, 1865

Our National Resources.

A few years since Oregon was an isolated country where people were content living upon the proceeds of the mining days of '49 and '50 raising partial crops in the anticipation of a foreign demand, or driving occasional bands of cattle and horses to California in search of a market. Slowly the State succeeding to the days of Territorial dependence developed in population, wealth and resources. Gradually the farming community awoke to the necessity for greater effort, and improved farms consequent upon better farming and more vigorous industry, gave evidence of a prosperous community.

What Oregon would have been if no northern mines had been opened up to make a great market it is not easy to say; certainly the wealth and population of the present day would have been wanting and the importance of the State at large would have been much less than it now is. The Willamette valley to-day is the most prosperous section of the Pacific. The rich crops of 1864 find a market at high figures owing to the scarcity universally prevailing elsewhere and as our people are as a class prudent and economical, as a consequence we now are more than ever independent in monetary affairs. Oregon from peculiarity of climate, and excellence of soil, has never known a failure of her crops, and need not fear it in the future.

East of the mountains we have a vast mineral region opening up with a promise of wealth and extent equal to all we have ever anticipated. It is true that the agricultural interests of Idaho every year becoming more and more developed but the prospect is that as the fields and gardens increase, so will the population, leaving still a demand for many years to come for the productions of our own State. There are extensive mineral districts in the Blue Mountains of eastern Oregon, and since the rich placers of northern Idaho have become worked out, ledges of rich ore have been discovered there, that promise permanent value and invite enterprise and capital. Still to the eastward Montana lies, if not promising us a direct trade as we anticipate, still sure to demand direct communication with Oregon and bring access of travel and business to the Columbia river. Should the enterprise of the O. S. N. Co. succeed in navigating Snake river and claiming the Montana trade by way of the upper Columbia river, we shall have direct trade with Utah, and furnish Salt Lake City and the Saints with supplies.

Looking back on the past ten years, we see that great progress has marked their flight. The inland deserts have been made alive with travel and trade, and waste places of but yesterday are comfortable homes to-day. In the mountain ranges of Idaho and Oregon is the talisman that performs these miracles and evokes this enterprise. These mountain ranges have only commenced to be developed and there is no reason to doubt that in ten years more those who sit in our place, or who apply the mighty lever of enterprise to the wheels of trade and commerce, will see as great a rate of improvement in looking back to our present position as we find evident in the past.

It is hardly possible to estimate the number of accessions to our population by the incoming overland emigration. Thousands and perhaps tens of thousands, are coming to cast their lot with us—many of them possessed of means, and all men of energy, or they would not have come. There is great evidence of improvement in town and country everywhere in the valley, and at no time in the last ten years, has there been a more satisfactory look to our State than now. Not only have our towns become more populous and our country homes more cultured, but everywhere, the people are becoming more self-dependent. Factories are springing up for the fabrication of many needed articles. Mills are built and building that can furnish bread-stuffs of the best quality, and our roads and rivers are being improved so that the transit of freight and passengers is made speedy and convenient. As a State we are still young in years, and ranking with the least in influence and importance, but the future promises well, if we reasonably improve the great advantages we possess, and while California loses population, and her interior towns are less flourishing, there is no reason to fear any such result among us. Whatever success we have gained has been gradual and healthy. Our progress has been slow and may continue to be so. Better that such is the case, than to put forth great pretensions to have them fail of fulfillment.

THE CALIFORNIA ELECTION.—The Copperhead papers of this State have for two or three weeks been excessively jubilant about the result of the California election. Because the Surratt Democracy elected a few members in San Francisco through a division in the Union party there, we were forthwith told that they had a majority in the legislature, and that "California was redeemed." The latest returns inform us that the Legislature of that State will stand about thus:

Senate	33	Union	7	Democratic
Assembly	48	"	24

If it would not be asking too much, we should like to have the Confederate Democrat of Albany, and that condensed budget of disloyalty, the Review of Salem, (whenever it comes out) to print the full returns. Their prophecies in this case have turned out as false as those they have uttered respecting all similar matters during the last five or six years.

The late rains throughout the valley are said to have damaged unthreshed grain to a considerable extent. In the upper counties the crops were generally well secured before the rain began, but in the lower counties, the harvest being somewhat later, some farms have suffered quite a loss.

The Washington county Fair will be held on the 16th of October—lasting three days.

IMMIGRATION ON THE MILITARY ROAD.—We understand from Mr. Anderson, who lives on the military road, near the Nehalem river, that some fifteen or twenty families of new comers are about to settle on the banks of that river, near the military road. All accounts from that section of this county, (or Washington county) represent it as very choice land, well situated, and only 28 miles by the military road from Astoria, or 20 miles to the head of good boat navigation to Astoria. Such a settlement as that number of families will make would soon grow to be a flourishing community, and being situated only twenty miles from the sea shore, where it is so healthy as it is here would scarcely be exchanged for any interior locality in the State. Success to that enterprise.—Idaho Gazette.

A CALL SESSION.—The Jacksonville Sentinel says: The sooner slavery is abolished by the constitution of the United States, the sooner peace and order will be restored throughout the Southern States. Governor Gibbs will call an extra session of the Oregon Legislative Assembly, for the purpose of ratifying the Amendment to the Constitution as soon as the vote of Oregon will make it the law of the land. From present appearances this will be the case by the 1st of November and the call session will be the 1st of December next.

VICTIM OF POPULARITY.—A Pennsylvania paper says that the people of Lancaster have elected ex-President Buchanan to the high and responsible office of constable for three years successively. Three times he has been compelled to go before the proper authority and swear that he was elected without his consent, and that he didn't want the office.

WILL THEY?—Hicks, Bellinger and Noltner combined will certainly be strong enough to head off Jimmy O'Meara.—Ex.

Wood & Wilkinson's steam flouring mill at La Grande, is about ready to commence operations.

By Overland Telegraph,

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO SEPTEMBER 17.

The new steam propeller Lincoln, built at Baltimore as a Revenue Cutter for the Pacific coast, has been ordered by the Secretary of the Treasury to start for its destination to-morrow.

The Times publishes Gen. Slocum's order revoking his order forbidding the organization of militia in Mississippi by Governor Sharkey. He says: We have no doubt a somewhat reliable that important changes will soon take place on the Mississippi regarding the powers and conduct of the Freedmen's Bureau, which will doubtless form a precedent for all other states lately in insurrection.

The Austrian commander in Michoacan paroles the Republicans in the hopes that the Belgian prisoners would be similarly treated by the Liberals. The advantages in that State are decidedly in favor of the Liberals.

The official papers at Durango mentions the reappearance in that State of General Patterna, who had joined the bands of Carola and Calogar, their combined forces amounting to 2,000 men. The French were awaiting their movements with great anxiety. The French General Neigra has had issued an order declaring that all proprietors must arm their laborers to resist the Liberals. He says the proprietors are responsible for the acts of Juarez.

From Mexico.

CAIRO, Sept. 16.—The New Orleans Times City of Mexico correspondent, under date of Sept. 11th, says: The news from the United States causes great agitation. The Imperialists are in a state of extreme anxiety. The most zealous adherents of Maximilian are discouraged. Every one seems to feel increased despondency. The Liberal forces are increasing rapidly in every direction. The city papers daily chronicle continued fighting. The town of Santiago, near Orizaba has declared for Juarez, recognizing General Garcia as the Liberal Governor of Vera Cruz. This place offers great advantages to the Liberals, as it puts them in connection with the States of Tobasco and Chiapas. Immense bodies of Liberals have united there and are seriously menacing Orizaba itself and the railroad from Vera Cruz. The Imperialists attacked the place twice, and were severely repulsed, which caused a great sensation.

The Austrian Count Therise has been operating in the mountains near Puebla. He captured some prisoners of importance. An Austrian detachment in Ahuatlan, composed of a company of lancers and another of infantry, with mounted howitzers was compelled to surrender to the Liberals. The Austrians were commanded by H. N. Rasnick. The Imperialist officers were shot.

The Yankee as a Fighter—What a Four Years' War has Wrought

The United Service Magazine, for July, has a clever article from the pen of Col. James F. Rusling, A. Q. M., on "The Yankee as a Fighter." It is pleasantly written and will delight all who love "Yankee doodle."

It begins with the remark that Brother Jonathan is dead, and that to-day the true Representative American is the Union Soldier. Four years ago he cut a sorry figure. He was taunted and bullied by the South to such an extent that the South began to think he couldn't be made to fight. The writer briefly recounts the insults heaped upon the North by the South, without raising our indignation. Finally came the days of secession, when the Southern Senators left Washington to take part in the Montgomery Convention.

"Said the traitor Mason, 'I owe no fealty to the Union.' 'My allegiance is due alone to Virginia.' Said the wash-buckler Wigfall: 'The Star of the West flying your flag, staggered into Charleston Harbor, South Carolina, struck between the eyes, and she staggered back. And now what are you going to do about it?' said the Senator from Oregon (alas for General Lane's shame [illegible]) 'They have gone. They have seceded. And now what does your government propose to do with the seceding Senators?' Thank heaven! there was one man there who had a fitting answer for such business, and the nation will not forget—has not forgotten—to honor him for his noble pluck then and there. While Republican Senators, even, quailed and hesitated before such unbridled audacity, such bold and defiant treason, be it remembered, Andrew Johnson sternly thundered: 'I will tell the Senator what I will do with them. If I were President, I would arrest them instantly on the charge of high treason; I would have them tried by a jury of their countrymen, and if convicted, by the eternal God I would hang them.' How his clarion words ring, trumpet tongued even now, though four years off!"

The exultation of the South over the first success of secession, the firing upon Fort Sumter and its effect upon the sluggish North—the marshaling to arms, the enthusiasm of the people for the Union, are portrayed. The South boasted of their superiority over us. Each Southerner was equal to at least five Yankees, but,—

"The great and fundamental error of the South lay in this—in supposing that the man of peace is always, and necessarily, for peace. Habitually he is. But to all men and so to nations not radically craven or essentially slaves, there comes a time when 'endurance ceases to be a virtue,' and then it becomes all oppressors to stand from under. You may bait a bear, or tease a tiger. If you don't go too far, but when you have roused his blood, and his eyes flash infuriate, take care how you bear yourself. The Yankee, by both nature and education averse to brawls and with a deep substratum of prudence and self respect in his composition, was reluctant to engage in civil war unless the national life and liberties compelled it. He was absorbed in trade. He loved manufactures. He affected the humanities. By every instinct and aspiration of his nature, and by all the tendencies of his age, he was committed and pledged to peace. His brain tended that way, and threw all its ample vitality in a thousand peaceful inventions. While the Southerner was following his hounds or tarrying his slaves the Yankee was reading books or discussing lines. While the one was sipping his juleps or guzzling his cocktails the other was building ships or improving [illegible]. While the one was craving Cuba and hankering after Mexico the other was giving to the world the telegraph and the sewing machine. Everywhere, both North and South, the Yankee hand and brain were busily at work, forging Thought, and then turning thought into useful comfort or national good; while the Southerner, as a type, cared only for brute instinct and barbaric power."

The necessity of the Yankee to become a soldier having occurred, he girded himself for war. Though awkward at first, hard knocks brightened him in his new duties. Steadily he bore up under the failure in the East from Big Bethel to the campaign of 1862. But Thomas and Grant were conquering in the West, and Mill Spring and Fort Donelson were vindicating to the world that the Yankee true to his ancestral blood, had yet high fighting qualities in him.

After recounting in a cursory manner the battles both East and West down to the close of 1863, occurs this passage:

"All these running through well nigh three years, pointed to and were most significant of military growth among our soldiers, and were but the natural and fit precursors to the march on Atlanta, the promenade through Georgia, the swing through the Carolinas. Meanwhile Grant had gone East, infused his own dauntless spirit into the Army of the Potomac, and led it by a sea of blood through that terrible campaign of the Wilderness, which more than all else previous in the war taught Europe to respect us and compelled her at last to admit the great qualities of the Yankee as a soldier. Here that European nations all of them, more or less, had been inclined to belittle our successes, and to make light of our battles as extended skirmishes. But when they saw the same army day after day unrelieved and with [illegible] yet pounding stubbornly on day by day worst [illegible] to more than strong formidable earthworks and capturing a division with artillery complete the next day [illegible] holding its own, intrenching under fire with bayonet and tin cup, fighting its enemy out for weeks at scarcely a stone's throw with its head bent to the hurtling storm with the impassiveness of Fate, resolved to conquer or perish in the attempt, and thus pushing its way from the Rappahannock to the James, fourth to early [illegible] quite one half its numbers hors de combat in its bloody tracks yet its commander calmly, 'to fight it out on this line, if it takes all summer.' We say when Europe saw this determined [illegible] worthy of the best men of the race in any age, she ceased her taunts to detraction, and found herself in the presence of [illegible] ought."

At last the Yankee was conceded by the people of Europe, and the South even, to have soldierly qualities.

"Four years of steady and persistent warfare, with all its strain, have at least converted the trading Yankee into the shrewd determined soldier [illegible] Grant with Thomas, Sherman and Sheridan [illegible] come the world was in [illegible] and bring it out."

It was to some extent a question of discipline between the North and South. The popular mind is apt to confound drill with discipline, but they are very different things. Drill is merely outside and mechanical, while discipline is inside, and so to speak, spiritual. The latter alone can mould the civilian into a soldier. At the outset neither North or South was in a manner, quite incapable of it. The Southerner had qualities to make a dashing soldier, but there was no 'wear and tear' about him. He had the dash to storm a fort but not the power to endure hard constant pounding.

The North, on the contrary, was possessed of all the elements of which to create discipline.

Her people were patient, plodding, resolute, averse to anarchy, but submissive to general law, believing only in the ballot box and the Divine rights of majorities, inured to arms, but fertile in resources, and with a brain to think, a hand to work, and an undying

[illegible] we knew we had [illegible] stopped at that [illegible] things [illegible] in preparation for the struggle [illegible] had a natural inclination [illegible] when once she started [illegible] upon us against our will [illegible] fully up to [illegible] and whatever [illegible] hay out of the North [illegible] darkest hours [illegible] to it.

The Yankee readily submitted from the discipline. The iron grip of military rule [illegible] on everything but the matter in hand. Inefficient officers were mustered out and sent home. Those who remained speedily gave [illegible] of an improvement.

"[illegible] was not long before the Yankee [illegible] and [illegible] Shiloh [illegible] Antietam [illegible] Gettysburg [illegible] Savannah [illegible] Fort Fisher [illegible] lines with death and destruction."

The final grand and glorious [illegible] military struggle is described in the following jubilant language:

"[illegible] victorious legions under [illegible] Fort Fisher [illegible] Jefferson finally [illegible] struck to announce to the world [illegible] the Nation [illegible] Thanks to Almighty God for the great victory with which He has now crowned you [illegible] under your command [illegible] Horae vi va dixit. Forever [illegible]"

The progress of events proves that as the North developed in discipline and steadiness, the South declined in morale and fighting capacity, until at last, the Yankee triumphing almost everywhere, the Cavalier breaks and runs almost at his own shadow.

"Yet after all [illegible] meagre resources in general the South has certainly exhibited handsome pluck, and it is not [illegible] that when we got safely out of this war and the two sections come fairly together again we [illegible] power that attacks the Republic. No [illegible] that has of late measured swords with us, nation else could stand for a single campaign against the people valor and Herculean effects that both sides have put forth in this war, and continue them as we [illegible] four years. How long think you would the average of foreign conscription have stood such terrible pounding as Lee gave Grant in the Wilderness, [illegible] masterly maneuvering and brilliant fighting as Sherman showed Joe Johnston and Hood in the campaign of Atlanta. [illegible] of which we [illegible] a point around [illegible] audacious march and [illegible] as but petty [illegible] the struggles, tremendous Titanic battles that both have waged unremittingly for the last four years.

But as a nation we have no thirst for blood, and no revenges to gratify. We struck at [illegible] our enemies and therefore can afford [illegible] notwithstanding the indignities of the [illegible] our foreheads. But while we forgive we cannot forget, though content for the present only to despise the cowards who would strike us when we are down. The war for the Union is over, and we may safely suggest, for the benefit of sister nations [illegible] that the Yankee meanwhile has learned well how to fight as a fighter, and hereafter will be found undoubtedly able to take care of himself. The war certainly found us a warlike people but not a military one. [illegible] the experience of campaigns and battles. It will leave us a nation of soldiers a half million strong, whose generals, not surpassed by Roman or Carthaginian, and for Cooke and Hannibal, Napoleon and Wellington, the Yankee tenders to history Grant and Sherman, Thomas and Sheridan, and history, as she records the magnitude of their operations, and the grandeur of their achievements, will welcome them to immortality as worthy compeers of her most illustrious captains. In continence in personal purity, in elevation of character and rectitude of private life, history, among all her great generals, will find few if any parallels. Well may some future Plutarch commend them to posterity as models to mankind."

New York Gold Quotations [illegible]

THE DAILY MAIL. — [illegible] California and Portland, Oregon [illegible] Second Assistant Postmaster [illegible] but 000 or anything like that [illegible] would require at least [illegible] The following from the San Francisco Bulletin [illegible] that a daily mail to Oregon [illegible] the day following the [illegible] mail that left this [illegible] to Oregon weighed [illegible] the ordinary steamer mail [illegible] San Francisco over that route [illegible] mails averages [illegible] Sacramento [illegible] the route. The idea [illegible] this from a daily to a weekly [illegible] on the part of the Legislature [illegible] service on this route [illegible] people, that is [illegible] Appeal after relating the facts [illegible] stoppage of the Oregon daily [illegible] are not yet without [illegible] mail service [illegible] totally unacquainted with the [illegible] and fails to understand the [illegible] deprive of mail facilities [illegible] all the facts are presented [illegible] creditable style [illegible] probably be necessary [illegible] in this matter [illegible] called in every city [illegible] meetings forwarded to Washington [illegible] any special agent of the [illegible] carry on to Washington [illegible] ago could be held within [illegible] remonstrance on the [illegible] What say the press [illegible] people write a big letter [illegible] hold such public meetings [illegible] said, the quicker the better [illegible] the daily mail.

GOLD ORE FROM IDAHO. — We are [illegible] of the wealth of Idaho [illegible] bullion and at others in specimens of [illegible] The fame of the "Trook and Jennings" lode in Owyhee is furnish[illegible] big piece of the richest ore yet seen from there and the practical working of a few hundred pounds [illegible] average go from that mine to the [illegible] about a yield of $800 per ton. The rich specimens we have seen from there would [illegible] fully ten times that [illegible] We have been hearing lately [illegible] another mine in Owyhee but having seen none of the ore we feel confident it is there. We are not a judge of [illegible] to be sure, but it did not take much judgement to believe that we saw native quicksilver upon the surface. Some of the most beautiful silver and gold bearing quartz that ever came to this place is from the Atlanta lode, Yuba District, Idaho. This lode is said to be 20 feet wide, and if the ore we saw is any indication of its value, and the reports we hear of the lode from those who have seen it are correct, as we have no reason to doubt, Yuba District will rival any that in existence. Idaho is being slowly developed, but seems to have a certainty of success. The specimens and bricks they bring us are rather [illegible] to an outsider.

THAT "CRACKED BELL." — Has "tolled" his own story. We give it below, verbatim. We are properly a stickler [illegible] ourself, but in following "the law" and [illegible] the instances, as in this case, we should follow the spirit rather than the letter, and not be alarmed about "perjuring" ourself to serve "the dear people." The "[illegible]" is from his pen.

That "cracked Bell" thankfully receives all of Uncle [illegible] mails [illegible] to him from any section whatever, but in every instance opened all mails belonging to his office, has not returned any portion of such mails — except such matter as ought to be so returned on their [illegible] their proper destination, holds himself in readiness to take charge of any of the United States mails offered to his care, and (as heretofore) take pleasure in [illegible] punctually all mails, but only by qualified [illegible] as the law directs, as the oath of office which [illegible] positively prohibits any other delivery. To be accommodating is his chief delight, but to perjure [illegible] for that pleasure would be too costly a [illegible] to serve "the dear people." The oath of office subscribed by other Postmasters for aught I know may be different from that subscribed by A. H. BELL, P. M. at Oregon City.

[illegible] Couch's wharf was taken up in every conceivable way yesterday, to supply the want of shippers. [illegible] the steamer Sierra Nevada, two coasting barks and other small crafts, steamers, etc., were busy receiving and discharging cargo. Drays and goods, wares or [illegible] of every character, blocked the dock, rendering it "out of the way" for any one to get about on [illegible] were pressed by business. We are pleased [illegible] we can see such indications of prosperity. The vessels coming to our wharves now are overloaded, and cannot even carry all that is offered for the trade of Oregon. The last steamer left two hundred tons that she could not bring — the Active is full, the Scranton now on [illegible] will soon leave, followed by the Almy and [illegible] and still there will be a demand for freight [illegible]. The Government has been obliged to [illegible] a steamer for the conveyance of stores to [illegible] Fort Vancouver. These things show to a certainty that some people are to be found who have faith in [illegible] country.

FOR SAN FRANCISCO. — Auctioneer Richardson, after an [illegible] of four years, proposes to visit the State of California, and will leave by the Sierra Nevada this afternoon. Mr. Richardson has been a most industrious and [illegible] He has met the ups and downs [illegible] in the greatest extremes since his arrival upon the [illegible] but by [illegible] may say that he has kept the [illegible] hand of adversity in a financial point, at last [illegible] his purpose in a renewal of his condition as it [illegible] to the flood — by which, with numerous others [illegible] mines at Sacramento. We should speak in [illegible] of praise of the course pursued by Mr. Richardson [illegible] by which he has been placed well up on the [illegible] of amassing a fortune, but knowing his extreme [illegible] we forbear — we will say this much, however — [illegible] is a gentleman, a scholar, and a perfect brick. We [illegible] him a pleasant and safe journey, and a speedy [illegible].

[illegible] ON THE COLUMBIA. — For some days past weather [illegible] on the Columbia river. The steamer John [illegible], due from Astoria on Tuesday night, did not arrive at her dock until yesterday morning — mainly owing to the gale. The storm extended even beyond the mountains [illegible] the st[illegible] Oneonta ashore on the middle [illegible] the boats above Celilo from making [illegible] It is said to have been [illegible] ever known on the river, making the [illegible] is at the Dalles [illegible] up and dust with the [illegible] of velocity on record.

[illegible] — Hamilton, the third customer coming to [illegible] of the Police while lying drunk upon the street [illegible] yesterday appeared before Recorder [illegible] and advice. He was advised to [illegible] sum of $5 and costs, but being short [illegible] was further advised, in the happy [illegible] to "put up" at the Cross Bar [illegible] hotel [illegible] of days, which he very graciously [illegible] as it costs him nothing.

[illegible] — The season for snipe and quail [illegible] has fully arrived, and the admirers of those epi[illegible] are actively engaged in prosecuting their [illegible] "game." Bob-tail shooting jackets [illegible] and patent boots with large glazed [illegible] dogs, shot guns, and baskets are in demand [illegible] and snipe are excellent [illegible].

[illegible] AND OYSTER HOUSE. — The [illegible] according to [illegible] card is now supplied with a tip-top [illegible] game, tenderloins, plenty of mushrooms, oysters, [illegible] fine wines, and the several other ludicrous [illegible] to a [illegible] bill of fare. The Gem is an old [illegible] institution of the metropolis.

TAKEN DOWN. — Capt. Dick Williams yesterday took the steamer Cowlitz to the Oregon Steam Navigation Company's dock yard, where she was laid up in reserve for a [illegible] or until the Company can rebuild her for the exclusive use of the Cowlitz river, connecting at Monticello with the Express for Portland.

[illegible] RACE. — The fall races over the Walla Walla Course will conclude with a great sweepstake race on the 20th of October, free for all horses in Washington, Idaho and Oregon — with one exception [illegible] weights the affair [illegible] for particulars.

A GOVERNMENT STEAMER EXPECTED. — The commandant at Fort Vancouver is expecting a Government steamer at that place within a few days. She will probably leave [illegible] to-morrow [illegible] troops and stores for [illegible] the coming winter against the hostile tribes east of the mountains.

A LADY [illegible] SUES FOR HER TRUNK. — A young girl who has been employed at the Fashion Saloon in this city, last evening wished to leave the place when her trunk was held. Marshal Hoyt assisted her to the rightful [illegible] of her property.

ATTACHED. — A portion of the cargo of the Sierra Nevada was taken at Astoria [illegible] of the people of the State of Oregon [illegible] the creditors of [illegible].

ARRIVED. — A [illegible] at the dock last evening [illegible] after the Postoffice [illegible] however.

[illegible] — Marshal H[illegible] legal hands yesterday [illegible] the hope of hearing [illegible] cases before the Supreme Court.

BEAVER MONEY. — City Treasurer [illegible] the admiring gaze of the people [illegible] office yesterday [illegible] of in this paper yesterday.

ARRIVED. — The bark [illegible], Capt. [illegible] arrived yesterday morning in tow of the steamer John H. Couch, 16 days from San Francisco [illegible] Weekly [illegible] the voyage and [illegible].

THE GEN. [illegible] — Capt. Kerns, new at [illegible] the Gen. Grant [illegible] yesterday for [illegible] Saturday she will tow the bark [illegible] to Astoria.

NO NEWS. — The telegraph [illegible] working [illegible] yesterday [illegible] patches this morning.

THE STEAMER. — The Sierra Nevada will sail to-day at 4 o'clock P. M. for San Francisco via Victoria.

FOR TILLAMOOK. — The schooner [illegible] clears to-day for Tillamook Bay, full freighted.

Boise and Owyhee.

[illegible] City, Sept [illegible] 186[illegible]

[illegible] New York [illegible] Ruby City. This mill will run twenty stamps with Wheeler pans and amalgamators [illegible] work [illegible] commence the crushing of quartz by the early part of November. [illegible] and Owyhee [illegible] with gratifying [illegible] the operations of the mill and mines will be prosperous and remunerative. The Company [illegible] purchased [illegible] the Minnesota ledge [illegible] one of the best located and richest ledges in Owyhee. This ledge has a well established reputation [illegible] Oro Fino, Morning Star and that wonderful late discovery, the Trook & Jennings [illegible] equal to other [illegible] success.

Another mill is [illegible] Silver City on an [illegible] which is built by Oregon capital [illegible] principally subscribed [illegible] This mill and the new mill [illegible] Messrs. Sh[illegible] a half mile above Silver City, are on a smaller scale than is the magnificent mill of the New York and Owyhee Company alluded to above, but each is being well constructed, especially the Sh[illegible] mill, the walls of which are of substantial granite, a good indication of the manner in which the enterprising proprietors intend to complete the whole. The Vass mill, in which our friend and townsman H. B. M[illegible], Esq., is interested and hard at work, has been completed and in successful operation for six weeks. The mill is not calculated to do a great deal of work in a day, but it costs much less than any other, and is doing a good business, being principally managed by the proprietors themselves at a small expense. The Vass mine, which is quite near the mill on the mountain side above it, has not yet been sufficiently developed to furnish ore to keep the mill employed, but gives promise of being exceedingly valuable.

THE [illegible] JENNINGS.

The Ainsworth mill is over on Snake creek, across the mountains towards Snake river, about six miles from Silver City. This mill has been overhauled and much improved the present season, and under the able management of Mr. Leonard, a gentleman of sufficient experience and judgment, it is doing an excellent business crushing the rich ore dug from that last miracle of Owyhee, the Trook & Jennings. It is not believed that any process save a thorough roasting and desulphurizing of the ore from that ledge, can succeed in saving over half of the precious metals it contains, but the Ainsworth mill has in the short time it has been running, cleaned up several hundred pounds of bullion, which, owing to the great amount of gold in the quartz, must have been worth four dollars per ounce. To my own personal knowledge, this mine has in the two months just elapsed since its discovery, paid back all the expenses of development and left a handsome surplus which has been expended in purchasing in small interests for the company. On the first of September they estimated that over 50 tons of ore had been sent to mill. Returns from the Ainsworth mill justify the belief that the product of the whole would not be less than $20,000 and perhaps more, while the ledge at a depth of only 40 feet, was near three feet in width, losing nothing of its excelling richness. This ledge, at the surface was only a few inches thick. It has been traced south 1,500 feet, and found quite rich as it climbed the Oro Fino mountain at an altitude of several hundred feet above the discovery ground. James Hoffman, a young man from Corvallis, is one of the discoverers. He went to Jordan creek last spring, quite ignorant of mining, and now to the mountains and after three months residence he had sold out his interest in the Trook & Jennings, or rather the greater part of it for the snug sum of twenty thousand dollars, and the probability is the purchaser will soon realize as much more for his purchase as negotiations are in progress to sell this mine East for $250 per foot. These facts concerning the Trook & Jennings ledge are reliable, as they have come under my personal observation, and I give them as showing that two years of constant search and labor still leave discoveries of great value to be made in the center of that district, and no doubt many such others will yet be made as the Trook & Jennings is a blind ledge, or one that did not show on the surface.

MORNING STAR AND ORO FINO.

Messrs. Moore, Fogus & Co. have rented at a handsome sum the Minear Mill, half a mile above Silver City, which is crushing Oro Fino rock under their management with the usual success which attends them. Their Morning Star mill is now employed in crushing rock from the Morning Star mine, close by it. They have erected a small furnace merely to test six tons of that ore by a thorough roasting process, confident that so doing will almost double the yield. I am confident that many of the silver ores of that district will have to be so treated to secure any great proportion of the metals they contain, though they may pay well without it. And such experiments as those thoroughly made are of great value to the public. We do not hear of shipments of bullion from Owyhee very frequently, but I was assured by parties who knew, that loads of "bricks" were very frequently carried in the stage outside of the express, and my friend, the agent of W. F. & Co., once gave me some insight into the bullion trade by opening his safe door, and I found quite a job on my hands when attempting to lift only the smallest specimen it contained.

A greater part of the bullion of Owyhee passes into private hands, as the merchants pay off mill hands in trade and gold dust, receiving bullion in exchange. At present the business and appearance of Owyhee as also of South Boise is much improved by the disbursement of large sums by foreign companies, who are purchasing mines and erecting mills in those counties. Several large mills are also being erected in Boise Basin by New York companies, who are attempting to develop its mineral resources. Volcano District, I am assured, will soon have a mill at work among its ledges as the long expected machinery for one arrived only a week ago.

FLINT DISTRICT.

A sketch of Owyhee as it is at present would be incomplete without a particular mention of Flint District, which is only eight or ten miles South of [illegible] as I have before written. This district has been most successfully developed during the summer, and as Captain Wild [illegible] evidently predicted to me when we visited it together last spring, it is proving of the first importance in the width of its ledges and the reliable richness of its ores. Many conflicts have arisen as to title. Many of the richest ledges were insecurely held, the law being insufficiently complied with in many cases. Other parties taking advantage of these facts have jumped such claims. In one instance, on a rich ledge in South Boise, double barrelled guns are called into requisition to keep possession. There is no doubt that Flint District is of great importance, and men of judgment and [illegible] means are showing their appreciation of that fact by making large investments in its ledges, some of which show ores as rich in silver as the Morning Star, but less rich in gold.

[illegible] MINES OF OWYHEE.

To be posted as to the Owyhee interests up to the time of my departure, I have made a trip to Quicksilver District, where, upon a mile square of mountain side, which is [illegible] while all around is granite, the development in different places show rich deposits of cinnabar. During the last two months [illegible] and with great success [illegible] ledge. Taking the [illegible] cinnabar and the [illegible] New Almaden, the [illegible] County [illegible] is of good quality [illegible] the expenditure [illegible] the home manufacture [illegible] the prosperity of the rich [illegible] eastward of us.

SOZODONT. — An article that [illegible] preserver and breath purifier [illegible] and convenient [illegible] does not surprise any one [illegible] behind the fact that the Sozodont [illegible] excellent qualities in an eminent degree [illegible] legitimately acquired the right to a position on every toilet table.

—OF—

HAS BEEN USED FOR NEARLY

HALF A CENTURY,

WITH THE MOST ASTONISHING SUCCESS IN CURING

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Croup, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Difficulty of Breathing, Asthma, and every affection of the

INCLUDING EVEN

CONSUMPTION.

There is scarcely one individual in the community who wholly escapes, during a season, from some one, however slightly developed, of the above symptoms—a neglect of which might lead to the last named, and most to be dreaded disease in the whole catalogue. The power of "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree over this class of complaints is well known; so great is the good it has performed, and so great the popularity it has acquired.

In this preparation, besides the virtues of the Cherry, there are commingled with it other ingredients of like value, thus increasing its value ten fold, and forming a Remedy whose power to soothe, to heal, to relieve and to cure disease, exists in no other medicine yet discovered.

The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of

has induced many physicians of high standing to employ it in their practice, some of whom advise us of the fact under their own signatures. We have space only for the names of a few of these:—

GEN. COX'S LETTER.—We have received the very interesting and able letter of Major General J. D. Cox, Republican candidate for Governor of Ohio, upon the question of reconstruction. It has been stigmatized, and is by some regarded as opposing negro suffrage. On the contrary, it proposes a plan for colonization or rather "aggregating" the colored race into districts, to be governed, first as Territories and then as States, but in which the negroes are to have "not only full, but exclusive political privileges—in which they are not only to vote, but to hold the offices." This, surely, is very far from opposing negro suffrage. The utmost difference of opinion between Gen. Cox and the friends of universal suffrage that can be predicated on this letter is that while many of the more enthusiastic of the latter have urged that the ballot alone would give the negro a remedy and a defensive weapon against the oppression of their late masters and the prejudices of the white race, General Cox, on the other hand, thinks the remedy would prove inadequate, the defense insufficient, the negro would be overborne by force of numbers, and hence, in addition to the ballot, there must be separation or segregation of the races into black States and white.

General Cox brings to the discussion of the subject not only earnestness and ability, but a mind well stored with the results of study and reflection, and schooled in all the practical lessons of the war. His conception of the hostility of race existing in the South, both on the part of the blacks and the whites is vivid, but may not be exaggerated. The views which he has crystallized into expression have been growing in many minds for a considerable time. It will be remembered that in the conference between Secretary Stanton and Gen. Sherman and the twenty colored clergymen of Savannah published in Beecher's sermon on negro suffrage, all but one of the colored men favored the proposition of giving the blacks a territory by themselves, for the very reasons stated by Gen. Cox.

Question by Secretary Stanton—State in what manner you would rather live—whether scattered among the whites, or in colonies by yourselves?"

Answer by Frazier—I would prefer to live by ourselves, for there is a prejudice against us in the South that will take years to get over; but I do not know that I can answer for my brethren. [Lynch says he thinks they should not be separated altogether. All the other persons present being questioned one by one, answer that they agree with brother Frazier.]

General Sherman has since advocated this policy, and indeed the policy of General Saxton, and of the entire Freedmen's Bureau, so far as they aim to collect the colored people into self supporting social communities, is a practical approximation toward it. As it contemplates no measure of force toward the blacks, and as both the whites and the blacks of the South would, in a great measure, fall in with it, we cannot but deem the general plan of segregating the blacks into social communities, by themselves, to be governed by their own laws, and represented by their own leaders, as a valuable accompaniment and corrollary, rather than as a contradiction to the policy of negro suffrage. Indeed it is the latter result which, in our own minds, as set forth in the Tribune months since, will produce the former.

Give the negroes the right of suffrage in South Carolina, where they have a majority of three to two over the whites, and what is to prevent them from establishing just such a community as General Cox here desires? They will secure for their race such immunities and privileges as will induce the whites of South Carolina to leave the State, while the colored race will flock in from the adjoining States. Why will not the work of separation and segregation go on, under these circumstances, to the security of the negro, the peace of the country, and the solution of the whole problem of suffrage, race and color? But we still urge negro suffrage as the only efficient means to bring about the separation which General Cox advocates.—Chicago Tribune, Aug. 2d.

THE TRUTH APPEARING.—The return of peace and the renewal of social intercourse between the Northern people and the late rebels are bringing to light some of the facts connected with the primary movements of the rebellion, which have so long been veiled with uncertainty. Throughout the war it was stoutly contended at the North that the Acts of secession in the Southern States were in nearly every instance passed by fraudulent votes, and that the masses of the people never were really favorable to the disunion schemes of their leaders. The Union sentiment was long regarded as an important element in the South, and it was only when the inexorable conscription dragged all classes into the rebel army, that the hope of aid to the North, from that element, was dissipated. The secret history of the secession of Alabama is now being made public, and the truth concerning the manner in which that State was added to the Confederacy is beginning to appear. It is stated by resident Unionists of that State, that the Convention which passed the secession ordinance at Montgomery was composed of one hundred members, forty-eight of whom were avowed Union men. The popular vote which elected those delegates show that seven thousand more votes were cast for Union delegates than for those pledged to secession; and that in addition to this, a large number of Union men were, in many places, forcibly prevented from voting in accordance with their principles, or were coerced into the support of the disunion candidates. After the ordinance of secession was passed, by this trumped-up majority, it was proposed, in order to give it ostensible legal effect, that it should be submitted to the people for ratification or rejection, as is done in the case of amendments to State Constitutions; but this was not done, for the reason, as now transpires, that the secession leaders were afraid the people would nullify the work. And there is no doubt that they were correct in this conclusion, for the Union men claimed at the time, and have reiterated the opinion ever since, that if a fair vote on the ordinance had been allowed them it would have been defeated by the popular vote. The policy of the President has been criticised by some because it makes so wide a distinction between the people generally and the leading rebels. But do not such disclosures as this regarding the early acts of the rebellion in Alabama, show both the wisdom and the justice of such discrimination?—New York Sun.

OPINION OF ATTORNEY GENERAL SPEED—THE TRIAL OF THE CONSPIRATORS.—Washington August 10.—The Attorney General, in response to an inquiry of President Johnson whether the persons charged with the offense of having assassinated the late President should be tried before a military tribunal or a civil Court, gave a written opinion sustaining the former mode of trial. This opinion has been printed. It maintains that a military tribunal exists under and according to the Constitution in time of war; that the law of nations constitutes a part of the law of the land, and that the laws of war constitute the greater part of the law of nations. The laws of war authorize human life to be taken without legal process, or that legal process contemplated by those provisions in the Constitution that are relied upon to show that judicial military tribunals are unconstitutional. The law of nations, which is the result of the experience and wisdom of ages, has decided that jayhawkers, banditti, etc., are offenders against the law of nations and of war, and as such amenable to the military. Our Constitution has made those laws a part of the law of the land.

Obedience to the Constitution and to law, then, requires that the military should do their whole duty. They must not only meet and fight the enemies of the country in open battle, but they must kill or take the secret enemies of the country and try and execute them according to law. The civil tribunal of the country cannot rightfully interfere with the military in the performance of their high, arduous and perilous, but lawful duties. The Attorney General characterizes Booth and his associates as secret, active public enemies, and he concludes with the opinion that "the persons who are charged with the assassination of the President committed the deed as public enemies, as I believe they did, and whether they did or not is a question to be decided by the tribunal before which they are tried. They not only can but ought to be tried before a military tribunal. If the persons charged have offended against the laws of war, it would be palpably wrong for the military to hand them over to the civil Courts, as it would be wrong in a civil Court to convict a man of murder who had in time of war killed another in battle."

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S BROTHER—HIS VIEWS ON THE NEGRO QUESTION.—A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial says:

I have had lately the pleasure of meeting and conversing with W. P. Johnson, the only living brother of President Johnson, who is now on his way from Washington to his home in Brazoria county, Texas. Johnson is sixty-five years of age, being two years older than his distinguished brother, but is still vigorous and robust, and expects, as he says, to support his family of six persons by the labor of his hands as he has for many years. He is a mechanic by trade, and scouts at the modern notion that a white man can't work in the South as well as a negro. "I," said he, "I have laid slates on a housetop in New Orleans and Baton Rouge, in June, many a day." Johnson is short of stature, stout and muscular; has a keen gray eye and a truly patriarchal beard. He is vivacious and rapid in his utterance, fond of telling or hearing a good story, quick to make a point by a pithy, homely comparison, of keen insight into character, and his conversation filled with practical facts collected in a lifetime of close observation. He has none of the refinement of a politician, his sentiments being pronounced on all questions and unmistakable, and his hatred of slavery and negroes, secession and negro equality, alike cordial. He is eminently a self-made man, and his ideas have the strength without the polish which is peculiar to such characters. As a shrewd, clearheaded observer of Southern men and institutions through a long lifetime, I deem his views worthy of much consideration. He makes no pretensions of being an exponent of his brother's sentiments or policy, as he has not seen him, except for twenty-four hours at his mother's death, had since 1846 till he met him a few weeks ago in Washington.

"What," I asked him, "do you think is the average profit on slave labor?"

"Not more than six per cent."

"No higher than that?"

"Not at all. It will not be more, than two and a half per cent, if it were not for the increase of the negroes."

"How then, do we find some of the planters so immensely wealthy?"

"Oh that was by squatting on new land. They took it up at $1 25 per acre, and the advance of the land alone would make them rich. If a planter owned a stock of negroes, to employ which he was obliged to rent land, even if they increased rapidly, his income from them would not exceed six per cent. of their value, while, if they were unproductive, as they always are in the great cotton regions, and he realized nothing but their labor, he would not, I am confident, net more than two and a half per cent. on his investment. The slaves are wasteful. They have so much waste matter in the cotton that the wastage is very great. The buyers always prefer the poor man's bale, because they know it has been picked clean by him and his children, and will buy it first."

"What kind of a plan do you think it would be to set Texas off, and put all the negroes in it by themselves?"

"I would like to see it done. I want them all out of the country. But they wouldn't stand it long. In three years they'd relapse to barbarism and we'd have to feed them."

IS THERE DANGER OF FUTURE REBELLION?—There is no occasion to doubt the sincerity or patriotism of those who oppose Mr. Johnson's policy, however, upon these measures of reconstruction. It is their judgment and sagacity with which we take issue. They fear that if the rebel ports are permitted to resume their old relations in the Union, without first giving the negroes ballot and without having remodeled the State Constitutions and laws so as expressly to protect the negro, and to make a future revival of slavery impossible, the ex-traitors will resume control of Southern politics, the negroes will continue to be oppressed, and the seeds of future slavery will be sure to germinate. The answer to all this, however, is that if the South have not had quite enough of rebellion to effectually repress any further inclination in that direction, nothing that we can do will effect the object. If every negro were to emigrate and slavery be utterly forgotten, some other pretext would be found—just as Calhoun found it in the Tariff question. As to the relations between the Freedmen and their late masters, they will adjust themselves. They are made free, and there is no power to re-enslave them. The law will protect them in their new rights, and the Government will see the law maintained. To resist the Government in this is to make another rebellion, which we need hardly anticipate during the coming century, to say the least. The negroes must labor for bread, and the whites cannot do without their labor. Of necessity, the employers must be just, and the employed must be faithful in their turn. True, at present we hear of many exhibitions in the South of intense hatred of the freedmen. Doubtless there are many cases of cruelty and persecution towards the blacks. Bad slave masters have not yet learned the necessity of being decent employers. But they must learn it soon, for the alternatives of the lesson are starvation or emigration. They cannot live and prosper in their old homes without negro labor, and after a little time they will find they can only obtain that by kindness and justice. Thus, if they remain at home, they are forced to aid in regulating and perfecting the system of free labor. If they won't do this, they are compelled to give place to those who will.

QUALITIES OF THE HORSE.—We should take more pains to breed horses of beautiful carriage, fine proportions, good tempers, courage and docility than for high, Gilpin speed. We want horses for all purposes, that are not cowardly, that will not take fright; for those of that temperament are ever dangerous to whomsoever may use them, and to persons in the streets. Much damage is done, annually by such horses, to carriages, harness and other property. Many limbs are broken and lives lost by these affrighted animals. It should be an indictable offense to bring such horses into the market. Courage and other good traits and qualities in the horse are hereditary, as in the human race. We should look to the pedigree for purity of blood, health and constitution also.

The gait of the horse is less easy and graceful when pressed to a high rate of speed. It is much more healthy, pleasant and safe, to ride at a moderate pace, upon a horse of an easy gait. When riding for pleasure, it is more pleasant and safe, at a six mile speed, than at 2.40 or under. We have, thus, the best and most perfect view of the country or town through which we may ride. Moderate horses are the best, and most comfortable of management, for business and domestic purposes and uses. Those of high speed are more liable to accidents, are more easily injured, are less hardy than others.

Now-a-days, we travel by steam, when we journey, and our swift-winged messages are sent by the aid of electricity.

Swiftness is only a fancy and sportive quality, and too much regard to it, in the breeding and rearing of horses, is a public injury.

GEO. O. BETTON.

SOUTHERN OPINION OF GENERAL GRANT.—When Vespasian and Titus, father and son, had their joint triumph at Rome; when Frederick of Prussia returned to his capital in triumph after his long war with a combination of the first powers in Europe, and when Napoleon the Great made his grand entry into Paris after the greatest of campaigns, their people hardly manifested more enthusiasm and more affection and more admiration than are entertained by the people of the Northern States for the great General who has been making the tour of New England.

It is not surprising that the people of the North should turn out in great numbers to greet General Grant. Such a man is not to be met with every year. He is one of the first commanders of this age, and as a man he has displayed qualities that must attract universal respect. Plain and unpretending in his address, of modest speech and manners, disdaining to court attention by the trappings of office, he pursues the even tenor of his way like a quiet, private gentleman. To the skill and courage of the soldier he unites that solid integrity which is oftener found in private station than in the haunts of public life. The South does not yield to the North in respect for and appreciation of General Grant.

While the Southern people are far less excitable and demonstrative than the people of the North, we believe that they look upon General Grant with as much interest and real admiration as he excites among them. Richmond fell before him, and with it the government of which it was the capital—but to this day that noble conqueror has never entered its gates. Whether this proceeded from delicacy of feeling, from a general and respectful consideration for the people, or from any other cause, it must always present him in a most favorable light. A vain, weak egotistical man would have delighted to exhibit himself under such circumstances, and to be pointed out as the hero of the occasion. General Grant from the close of the war up to this hour, has maintained a dignified silence, reserve and seclusion that contrast most favorably with the pretentious airs and pompous display exhibited by many men of greatly inferior mark and merit. While they swell and strut like the vain peacock, he shrinks from observation. He cannot, of course, be expected to bury himself, but as far as it is possible he appears to keep himself out of the range of observation. We do not doubt that it would be far more agreeable to him to be permitted to make his present tour like a private, ordinary citizen, but that is out of the question. There is a universal desire to see, shake hands with and bestow public honors upon the great General who has won the proudest name and fame of all the Northern Generals, and who in his great place has borne himself with so becoming a modesty.—Richmond Times.

AERIAL NAVIGATION AT LAST.—The aerial vessel invented by Delamarne bids fair according to a Paris correspondent to realize the anticipations entertained as to the successful application of the vertical helm in controlling the currents of wind by which the course of balloons have hitherto been guided. The vessel rose to the height of fifteen hundred yards, and then took a course due south. Delamarne, who acted as helmsman, steered the vessel in an opposite direction, and it accordingly sailed direct for Vincennes. To prove [illegible] the helm, [illegible] Delamarne then took a northerly route. At the request of the passengers, without touching the safety valve and simply by using the helm, he descended near Nogent and floated for some time close to the earth. After a sail of an hour and a half they decided on descending in the neighborhood of Choisy, which Delamarne accomplished without the slightest difficulty, and the passengers landed in terra firma as easily as if they had stepped out of an express train. Two results, it is added, are evident: By the horizontal helm placed in the stern of the vessel, it ascended and descended at the helmsman's pleasure, and by means of [illegible] placed at each side, combined with the action of the helm, a horizontal course is obtained.

THE PROPOSED TRIAL OF JEFF. DAVIS.—The New York Post of August 14th, says:

A well informed correspondent at Washington writes us that Jefferson Davis will be tried before a civil court, and probably at Richmond, before the United States Circuit Court there. We have reason to believe, further, that the trial of Davis will not be begun until that of Wirtz is concluded. The friends and counsel of Wirtz hope, it is said, to clear him, by proving that he was acting under the authority and orders of Davis and the rebel Secretary of War. If they succeed in this, [illegible] proofs of this [illegible] would furnish important testimony for use in the trial of Davis. There is therefore [illegible] sufficiently to postpone the trial of Davis for some months. It is probable that the rebel archives captured after the surrender of Johnston, and now under the [illegible] charge at Washington, will be thoroughly examined for documentary evidence before the trial is begun. Of course, if Davis is tried at Richmond, a new indictment will have to be drawn and found by the Grand Jury of that district. At present he has been indicted only in the District of Columbia. The new indictment will probably arraign him on other counts than [illegible] and it will perhaps contain a count charging him with the slow and deliberate murder of [illegible] prisoners of war.

Notice

I hereby give notice that the assessment made by Ordinance No. 200 for the improvement [illegible] voted by Ordinance No. [illegible] on [illegible] lots and parts of lots [illegible] street, between the south line of Morrison street and the centre of Jefferson street, is now due and payable [illegible] Treasurer in U. S. gold coin or silver [illegible] and if the assessment is not paid within five days from the final publication of this notice the Council will [illegible] for the collection of the same. TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

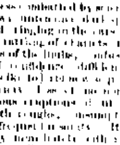
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,



617 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgence, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation they stumble onward until death closes the scene. [illegible] parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life destroying maladies, see that they are cured for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give a bond to put out a written instrument, binding him to effect a radical and permanent cure, or to no charge.

Persons at a distance may BE CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, by enclosing Ten Dollars sent in registered letter through Wells, Fargo & Co.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 617 Kearny street, near Commercial, San Francisco. P. O. Box 2562.

Consultation FREE.

Prevention Better than Cure.

The newly invented Fat-Ent Preventive, securely protects against Diseases and Pregnancy. Sent by mail. Price $2. Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 617 Kearny street, near Commercial, San Francisco. Post Office Box 2562.

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus, CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.
